additional details about this work.

Where:

WAFS along with other corporate sponsors. The finalist teams will pitch innovations that address the needs of other water professionals. This event is free for NEWIN members and $29 for non-members and tickets are available in software engineering, business development, marketing, and data visualization and range from $10 to $50.

Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy at Tufts University is looking for students to help build more effective social justice habits and discover how racial and social injustice effect the food supply. To learn more about the roles and to apply, visit www.spoileralert.com/careers.

The 2017 Barilla Center for Food & Nutrition's 2017 YES! (Young Earth Solutions) Research Grant Competition seeks to identify and support projects of significant impact, and can meet global research needs. Project submissions can be related to new or emerging health and safety topics, as well as other food-related research. The competition is open to researchers worldwide and submissions are due by 11:59 PM EST on November 30, 2016.

The NWRI Clarke Prize for Excellence in Water Research — Extended: Applications are due by 5:00 PM EST on December 1, 2016. This annual prize recognizes the achievements of a student with a PhD in Water Research.

The MIT Water Innovation Prize final pitch night will take place on December 5th, 2016.

BeBecause Water will be hosting a water pitch night on December 6th, 2016.

More info and registration for these events and others can be found on the MIT J-WAFS Food and Water News website.

MIT J-WAFS Food and Water News: upcoming events, funding opportunities, and more.